Biographical Note

Maynard L. Parker (1900-1976), known sometimes as "Mike," was born and raised in Vermont. Parker worked in New England at a variety of jobs, including office boy, machinist, and gardener, before turning to photography as a profession. Parker traveled to California three times in the 1920s, finally settling in Los Angeles in 1929. He and his wife, Annie, lived in the Echo Park neighborhood, where Parker built a house on Lemoyne Street designed by a draftsman in architect Richard Neutra's office. The New England saltbox-style house served as residence and studio, as well as the backdrop for many of Parker's published photographs. Parker's personal interests included archery, home renovation, and building furniture. [See photocopies of Maynard and Annie Parker's journals, and interview transcript with Ann Carawan and Diane Parker, February 14, 2008, in collection files].

Parker taught himself photography in the 1920s, achieving success in the amateur photography contests in which he participated. In 1927 he was hired as a bookkeeper for the Mott Studios of Photography, a firm specializing in architectural photography. By 1930 he was employed as a full-time professional photographer for Mott Studios. In 1936, he was a photographer for Skinner Photo Arts, another Los Angeles studio. Parker received his first major private commission in 1938, photographing the Sunset Boulevard store of jeweler Paul Flato, which allowed Parker to hone his considerable skills in dramatic lighting and creative set-ups. By 1940, Parker had come to the attention of Elizabeth Gordon. She became editor of House Beautiful in 1941, and thus began an affiliation between the two that lasted until 1964, when Gordon left the magazine. Parker also came to know a number of architects, designers, and builders, both through his relationship with House Beautiful and his other commercial work.

Parker established Maynard L. Parker Fine Photographs in 1938, changing the name to Maynard L. Parker Modern Photography in 1940. While Parker utilized family and a few assistants to help manage the business, he generally worked alone on assignments. Using an antique 4x5-inch camera and a complicated lighting system, he achieved dramatic effects. He often used a wide-angle lens to heighten a location's salient features, and he fearlessly scaled rooftops to achieve the optimum vantage point. Occasionally, he placed both his camera and lights underneath furniture. Parker's black-and-white outdoor work relied on stark shadows and high contrast to emphasize a garden's structure, form, and texture. He rarely created test shots, and often completed shoots with limited amounts of film. Parker routinely sent images from one assignment to multiple publications to maximize his output. He developed a photographic inventory of celebrity residences that he could market to magazines if commissions slowed down. He also planned family vacations to the East Coast, photographing the work of various architects and designers as he crossed the country. Parker's relationships and entrepreneurial efforts helped him build a client base that included hundreds of architects, designers, builders, design studios, retail furnishings businesses, and shelter magazines.

Parker undertook much of his House Beautiful work on extensive trips on both the East and West coasts. Accompanied by Joseph Howland, the magazine's garden editor from 1948 to 1956, the two followed Elizabeth Gordon's mandate to capture "beautiful gardens maintained by a family." As a consequence, Parker visually documented gardens by some of the nation's premiere landscape designers of the era.

Among the architects, designers, and builders with whom Parker worked extensively were his friend and pioneering modernist architect Harwell Hamilton Harris; James E. Dolena, one of the foremost architects working in the Hollywood Regency style; Cliff May, the popularizer of the modern California ranch house and a close personal friend; Pasadena-based architect Wallace Neff; Robert Stanton, a Carmel-based architect and close personal friend; Paul R. Williams, a Los Angeles-based African-American architect; Frank Lloyd Wright, to whom Parker was introduced by Elizabeth Gordon; landscape architects Tommy Church and Arthur and Marie Berger; developers Ross W. Cortese and Joseph Eichler; furniture and interior designers Paul Frankl, Paul László, Shirley Ritts of Ritts Co., and T. H. Robsjohn-Gibbings; Robert D. Harrell, Texas-based interior designer; and Barbara Barondess MacLean, actress turned interior designer. The retail businesses that Parker counted among his more important clients included Barker Bros., Cannell & Chaffin, W. & J. Sloane, C. W. Stockwell Co., O. M. Scott & Sons, and Albert van Luit & Company. Print clients included Architectural Digest, Better Homes and Gardens, Good Housekeeping, House Beautiful , the Los Angeles Times , and Sunset, among others. Parker also established relationships with contributors to these, and other, publications including writers Louise Price Bell, Martha B. Darbyshire, Frances Heard, Pauline Graves, Ethel McCall Head, Ellen Sheridan, and Fleeta Woodroffe. Many of the editors at House Beautiful also became close friends of Parker's. Foremost among these was Joseph Howland, garden editor; Virginia Stanton, party editor and wife of architect Robert Stanton; and Jean Murray Bangs, contributing editor and wife of Harwell Hamilton Harris.

Parker continued his work as a professional photographer into the late 1960s. He died in Los Angeles in 1976.

Scope and Contents

Maynard L. Parker negatives, photographs, and other material consists of 58,093 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints, and color prints; 39 presentation albums (spiral bound and mounted books of photographs created for clients); and 17 boxes of office records, dated 1930-1974. Created primarily by Maynard Parker, the archive documents the residential and non-residential work of architects, interior designers, landscape architects, artists, builders, real estate developers, and clients associated with these fields, foremost among them the magazine House Beautiful. Also included in the collection are photographs taken by other individuals, such as architects Frank L. Anderson and Cliff May, and photographers André Kertész, Fred R. Dapprich, and Parker's assistant, Charles E. Yerkes.

Parker's documentation of the work of architects and interior designers is extensive, and provides a comprehensive overview of the projects of many nationally-recognized figures as well as many lesser known firms and individuals, especially those working in and around California, Arizona, and Texas. See Architect/Designer/Builder Index for a complete list of individuals and firms represented in the archive.

Parker's commissions for House Beautiful are well documented in the archive. Included is a comprehensive overview of the work of architects, landscape architects, and interior designers covered by, and promoted in, the magazine. Also included are examples of party and holiday decorations, decorative accessories, and housewares in domestic settings. Parker's non-residential work for the magazine documents home and garden exhibitions, hotels, and furniture in showrooms. Primary among these projects is the extensive documentation of the Arts of Daily Living Exhibition held at the 1954 Los Angeles County Fair. Parker also extensively documented House Beautiful's annual Pace Setter House series, residential work for a number of the magazine's editors and contributing staff, and residences across the country and in Mexico.

Parker's projects created outside the scope of his House Beautiful commissions document both residential and non-residential work created for specific clients. See Client Index for a complete list of names and project numbers. Many projects do not have readily identifiable clients. These include the homes of many entertainers, movie directors, businessmen, writers and journalists, as well as model homes and housing developments including La Veta Woods in Orange, CA; a Kaiser Community Homes development; Lakewood Plaza in Long Beach, CA; Marlow-Burns & Company developments; and Olivewood Housing Project in National City, CA; as well as commercial buildings (retail and office spaces), hotels, restaurants, military bases, furniture showrooms, wallpaper, and jewelry.

Geographically, Parker's photography covers much of the continental United States, Hawaii, and parts of Mexico and Canada. It is especially strong in depictions of residential and non-residential projects in California (specifically the greater Los Angeles area), Arizona (especially Phoenix and Tucson), and Texas, but also includes projects in at least 28 other states.

Parker's office records consist of correspondence, notes, tear sheets, printed ephemera, logs, date books, and financial records created and received by Parker, Charles E. Yerkes, his photographic assistant, and Annie Parker, his wife and office assistant. These records describe the day-to-day business operations of Parker's photographic studio. The correspondence, primarily business in nature, consists of requests for commissions, instructions to Parker from clients, and other information about assignments. One significant aspect of these records is a folder of letters addressed to Parker from House Beautiful editor Elizabeth Gordon, dated 1942-1944, which details their business relationship and working methods.

Publication Rights

Copyright for the photography of Maynard L. Parker has been assigned to the Huntington Library, 1151 Oxford Road, San Marino, CA 91108. All requests for permission to publish photographs in any and all formats must be submitted in writing to the Curator of Photographs.

Preferred Citation

photCL MLP, Maynard L. Parker negatives, photographs, and other material.

Acquisition Information

Gift of Ann Carawan, Elizabeth Buxton, and Diane Parker Carawan, 1995; Ann Carawan, 2000.

Processing Information

Maynard L. Parker negatives, photographs and other material was processed in two stages: 1995-2007 and 2007-2009. From 1995-2007, Huntington Library staff and volunteers rehoused approximately 13,000 negatives. Parker organized his images alphabetically by client or project title in two concurrent files based on date. He also established a file for some, but not all, of his House Beautiful commissions. Thus, there were three distinct alphabetical series of negatives when processing began in earnest in 2007. A National Endowment for the Humanities "We the People" grant enabled the systematic rehousing, organization and description of the archive by a team of two archivists and an archival assistant. All but the immediately identifiable House Beautiful projects were merged into one alphabetical series before being re-divided according to the five series established by the project team in 2007 (see Organization).

Archivists created the series arrangement based on both the original order of the collection and a desire to facilitate access. A significant percentage of the collection included documented work by identified (and identifiable) designers, and the project archivists created a series dedicated to architects and designers (Series I). A House Beautiful series was necessitated by Parker's identification and filing of projects created for the magazine (Series II). House Beautiful subseries devoted to architects and designers, residential, and non-residential projects mimics the arrangement of the rest of the collection. The additional two subseries (Locations; Editorial and Staff Assignments) were created to reflect the large number of projects categorized by geographic location or House Beautiful editorial staff. The remainder of the collection fell into two series, residential and non-residential projects (Series III and IV), and were further divided into the subseries of client and project title. The collection also contained what were easily identified as "personal" photographs (Series V) and Parker's business records (Series VI).

Parker's labeling system was inconsistent. Negative envelopes or boxes were sometimes labeled with detailed information (homeowner, location, client, date, architect/designer) but more often just with initials or a name. The project team researched the identities, locations, and designers of projects wherever possible. If a designer could be determined, the project was filed in the appropriate Architects and Designers series. All project information is included in the associated database record. Parker tended to house and file color transparencies separately from the corresponding black-and-white negatives. To facilitate access, these relationships have been restored when possible.

With the exception of the House Beautiful series, projects are usually filed according to the main entry on Parker's envelopes, either by project title or client. In cases where the main entry provided no significant information about the project, an alternate entry, if present, was used. For example, a number of projects that appear to have been taken for Better Homes and Gardens were filed by Parker under the homeowner's name, but it was decided to file them under Better Homes and Gardens . If the main entry provided no information, archivists supplied a title, which is indicated by the use of square brackets ([]) in the project title.

Parker often undertook jobs that involved photographing more than one location, capturing multiple residences, gardens, etc., in one trip. Parker often housed these assignments together in one envelope, and each individual shoot was identified. These multiple projects have been given separate entries in the finding aid and the assocated Filemaker Pro database, but linked together through the use of a single project number.

Sue Luftschein organized and described the non-residential, architect and designer, and residential projects, and business records, and wrote much of the front matter of this finding aid; Jessica Gambling organized and described the House Beautiful projects; Alfredo Lafarga rehoused and researched a portion of the architect and designer, residential, and non-residential projects; and Suzanne Oatey contributed to the rehousing of some of Parker's early, non-residential commissions, as well as conducted research on some of Parker's print clients.

The scanning of 5000 images in the collection was conducted by Jennifer Sullivan between September 2008 and April 2009. A team of consultants selected items for scanning, applying standards and guidelines in use across the visual resources, archival, and library professions. These include rareness/uniqueness, coverage of subject matter, information on subjects that are poorly documented elsewhere, potential demand, and access to materials that cannot otherwise be easily used. Technical standards were applied to the creation of digital files according to California Digital Library guidelines.

The archive includes 11 boxes (7.1 linear feet) of negatives that have deteriorated; 3 of these boxes contain negatives that have deteriorated beyond the point of use. If more than two color transparencies of an image were discovered, the remainder were weeded and destroyed (a total of 1,554 transparencies). Preservation photocopying was performed on original envelopes, telegrams, newspaper clippings, and presentation albums.

Physical Characteristics or Technical Requirements

Black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, and color negatives have been placed in cold storage for preservation. Arrangements for access to these materials must be made in advance with the Curator of Photographs. Surrogates for many images exist in the form of digital scans and black-and-white prints; many images also exist in published form (see individual project records in the database for bibliographic information). Presentation albums are fragile; please refer to photocopied surrogates. In general, Ektachrome color transparencies have color-shifted to magenta, and Kodachrome color transparencies have remained stable.

Detailed Description of the Collection

Series I. Architects and Designers, circa 1938-circa 1973, undated

Physical Description: (68 boxes, 49.32 linear feet)

Arrangement

These images are arranged alphabetically by designer and then by project title. Generally, when both an architect and an interior designer are identified, the project is filed by architect. Projects in which there are multiple shoots have been given a single project number; the title of the first shoot was used to determine the alphabetical order within that project number.

Scope and Contents

The Architects and Designers series consist of 18,746 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints; and 22 presentation albums, circa 1938-circa 1973 and undated, created primarily by Maynard Parker to document the residential and non-residential work of architects, interior designers, landscape architects, builders, real estate developers, and artists. This series also includes photographs taken by architects with whom Parker worked, including Frank L. Anderson and Cliff May, and a few examples of work by other photographers, including André Kertész, Fred R. Dapprich, and Parker's assistant, Charles E. Yerkes.

Series II. House Beautiful*, 1941-1966, undated

Physical Description: (56 boxes, 37.7 linear feet)

Organization

These photographs are organized into 6 subseries:

Subseries II.1. Architects and Designers
Subseries II.2. Residential Projects
Subseries II.3. Pace Setter Houses
Subseries II.4. Non-residential Projects
Subseries II.5. Editorial and Staff Assignments
Subseries II.6. Projects by Location

Scope and Contents

The House Beautiful series is composed of 16,261 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, and black-and-white prints photographed by Maynard L. Parker and his assistant Charles Yerkes for House Beautiful , 1941-1966 and undated. This series provides a comprehensive overview of the architecture, landscape architecture, and design covered by, and promoted in, the magazine for over two decades.

Projects in the Architects and Designers subseries primarily document residential architecture, landscape architecture and interior design.

The Residential Projects subseries consists of residential architecture, interior design, and landscape architecture as well as examples of party and holiday decorations, decorative accessories and housewares in residential settings.

The Pace Setter Houses subseries documents homes chosen to be a part of House Beautiful's Pace Setter House Program. House Beautiful editor Elizabeth Gordon began the Pace Setter House program in 1946 to oppose the International Style of design embodied by architects such as Le Corbusier, Walter Gropius, and Ludwig Mies Van der Rohe. Pace Setter houses were intended to highlight a modern American architecture that emphasized craft and regionalism. The program continued until 1965, featuring 17 houses by architects including Cliff May, Henry Eggers, Walter Wilkman, Alfred Browning Parker, Harwell Hamilton Harris, and Roger Rasbach.

The Non-Residential Projects subseries documents non-residential projects including home and garden exhibitions, hotels, offices, and furniture in showrooms. A large portion of this subseries is made up of images of the Arts of Daily Living Exhibition held at the Los Angeles County Fair in 1954. Most of the room exhibits were designed by architect John De Koven Hill, architectural editor for House Beautiful at the time; one room was designed by architect Henry Eggers. Exhibits also include the furniture design work of Terence Harold Robsjohn-Gibbings, George Nakashima, and Hans Wegner.

The Editorial and Staff Assignments subseries documents projects created for editors and staff members of House Beautiful. These were garden writer Alice Dustan, home furnishings editor Frances Taylor Heard, garden editor Joseph Howland, horticulture writer Jean Lawson, family editor Marva Shearer, and contributor Ellen Sheridan.

The Projects by Location subseries includes photographs taken by both Parker and Charles Yerkes, depicting mostly residential projects in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Washington, D.C., Kentucky, Hawaii, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Virginia, and Washington. This subseries also includes residential subjects photographed in Cuernavaca and Puente de Ixtla, Mexico. A large number of photographs in this subseries document projects in Hawaii by architects such as Vladimir Ossipoff and Charles W. Dickey.

Subseries II.1. House Beautiful* : Architects and Designers , 1942-1966, undated

Physical Description: (24 boxes, 16.77 linear feet)

Arrangement

These photographs are arranged alphabetically by designer. Projects in which there are multiple shoots have been given a single project number; the title of the first shoot was used to determine the alphabetical order within that project number.

Scope and Contents

The House Beautiful Architects and Designers subseries consist of 7,565 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints, and color prints, 1942-1966 and undated, created by Maynard L. Subseries II.3. House Beautiful : Pace Setter Houses , circa 1948-1961

Physical Description: (6 boxes, 3.88 linear feet)

Arrangement

These photographs are arranged chronologically. Projects in which there are multiple shoots have been given a single project number; the title of the first shoot was used to determine the alphabetical order within that project number.

Scope and Contents

The House Beautiful Pace Setters Houses subseries consist of 1,494 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints, and color prints, circa 1948-1961, created by Maynard L. Parker and documenting House Beautiful's Pace Setter House Program. House Beautiful editor Elizabeth Gordon began the Pace Setter House program in 1946 to oppose the International Style of design embodied by architects such as Le Corbusier, Walter Gropius, and Ludwig Mies Van der Rohe. Pace Setter houses were intended to highlight a modern American architecture that emphasized craft and regionalism. The program continued until 1965, featuring 17 houses by architects including Cliff May, Henry Eggers, Walter Wilkman, Alfred Browning Parker, Harwell Hamilton Harris, and Roger Rasbach.

Included are the 1948 Pace Setter House designed by Cliff May, the 1949 house designed by Emil Schmidlin, the three Pace Setter Houses of 1950 built by the David D. Bohannon Organization, the 1951 Pace Setter designed by Julius Gregory, the 1953 house designed by Henry Eggers, the 1955 house designed by Harwell Hamilton Harris, the 1956 house which was a remodel designed by Morgan Stedman, the 1958 house designed by Vladimir Ossipoff, and the 1961 house designed by Roger Rasbach.

Subseries II.4. House Beautiful* : Non-residential Projects , circa 1942-1964, undated

Physical Description: (5 boxes, 3.23 linear feet)

Arrangement

These photographs are arranged alphabetically by project title. Projects in which there are multiple shoots have been given a single project number; the title of the first shoot was used to determine the alphabetical order within that project number.

Scope and Contents

The House Beautiful Non-residential Projects subseries consist of 1,505 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints, and color prints, circa 1942-1964 and undated, created by Maynard L. Parker for the magazine. Images document non-residential projects including home and garden exhibitions, hotels, offices, and furniture in showrooms.

A significant portion of this series is made up of photographs taken at the Arts of Daily Living Exhibition held at the 1954 Los Angeles County Fair. John deKoven Hill, architectural editor for House Beautiful at the time, designed most of the room exhibits in the show. Other designers represented are the architect Henry Eggers, Terence Harold Robsjohn-Gibbings, George Nakashima, Hans Wegner, Alfred Browning Parker, Sam Maloof, and Eleanor Forbes as well as interior designers Robert Ansteth, William P. McFadden, and the firm of Taylor-Mihailoff. Featured in the room exhibits is work by artists Emile Norman, Alice Petterson, Millard Sheets, and others.

Other exhibitions depicted are the 1952 Festival of California Living, Southern California Fall and Spring Flowers Shows, and the 1949, 1951, and 1954 San Mateo Floral Fiestas.

Hotels documented include the Hotel Bel Air and the Hotel Hacienda Vista Hermosa in Puente de Ixtla, Mexico.

Subseries II.5. House Beautiful* : Editorial and Staff Assignments , 1947-1959, undated

Physical Description: (9 boxes, 5.81 linear feet)

Arrangement

These photographs are arranged alphabetically by the name of the House Beautiful editor or staff member for whom the project was photographed or compiled. Projects in which there are multiple shoots have been given a single project number; the title of the first shoot was used to determine the alphabetical order within that project number.

Scope and Contents

The House Beautiful Editorial and Staff Assignments subseries consist of 2,428 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints, and color prints, 1947-1959 and undated, created by Maynard L. Parker for the magazine. This subseries contains individual projects that were created or compiled for House Beautiful editors and staff members: garden writer Alice Dustan; home furnishings editor Frances Taylor Heard; garden editor Joseph Howland; horticulture writer Jean Lawson; family editor Marva Shearer; and contributor Ellen Sheridan.

The largest section consists of projects for Joseph E. Howland. These are almost exclusively images of residential landscaping including many examples of the work of landscape architect Thomas Dolliver Church.

Subseries II.6. House Beautiful* : Projects by Location , 1941-1960, undated

Physical Description: (3 boxes, 1.94 linear feet)

Arrangement

These photographs are arranged alphabetically by state and city in which the project was photographed, and by project title. Projects photographed in Mexico are filed at the end of the subseries. Projects in which there are multiple shoots have been given a single project number; the title of the first shoot was used to determine the alphabetical order within that project number.

Scope and Contents

The House Beautiful Projects by Location subseries consists of 982 black-and-white negatives, color transparencies, black-and-white prints, and color prints, 1941-1960 and undated, created by Maynard L. Parker and Charles Yerkes, documenting projects in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Washington, D.C., Kentucky, Hawaii, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Virginia, and Washington. This subseries also includes residential subjects photographed in Cuernavaca and Puente de Ixtla, Mexico.

A large portion of this subseries is made up of projects photographed by Maynard L. Parker and Charles Yerkes in Hawaii. These include historical sites such as the Alexander and Baldwin Building, and Governor's Palace in Honolulu; contemporary buildings such as the Liljestrand residence and McInerny's Department store by architect Vladimir Ossipoff; and the Alexander and Gerbode residences by Charles W. Dickey.

Series VI. Office Records, 1930-1974

Physical Description: (17 boxes, 11.68 linear feet)

Arrangement

These records are generally arranged by type and by date. The correspondence is arranged by correspondent and by date.

Scope and Contents

Records consist of correspondence, notes, printed ephemera, logs, date books, tear sheets, and financial records, 1930-1974, created and received by Maynard Parker, Charles Yerkes, and Annie Parker. The records describe the day-to-day business operations of Parker's photographic studio.

Parker's correspondence (1930-1972) contains letters, notes, invoices, and brochures. While primarily business in nature, the correspondence also includes letters from family and friends. The majority of the correspondence dates from the early 1940s and the mid 1950s, with many chronological gaps, and consists of requests to Parker for photographs, duplicate prints, and permission to reproduce existing images. Of special note is the one folder of letters from House Beautiful editor Elizabeth Gordon to Parker, dated 1942-1944 (Box 203, folder 9). These consist of requests, instructions, and assignments. Also included are non-correspondence items such as tax information, stationery samples, clippings, personal printed ephemera, business cards, and photographs.

This series also contains notes, business cards, clippings and letters that were originally found with the negatives. See individual project records for details.

The logs and date books (1943-1967) provide additional background information on Parker's business. The photo and print logs list dates, client names, type of print, and amount paid. The date books contain notes, appointments, and phone logs, as well as client names and addresses. The artist's log contains information about some of Parker's photo shoots in 1967, including location, client name, mileage, and petty cash expenses.

This series also contains tear sheets collected by Parker that document work done for House Beautiful, and the Los Angeles Times , among others. Digital surrogates exist for some of this material.

Parker's invoices (1937-1971) primarily describe charges and payments for duplicate prints of his work. Many have letters attached. Clients requesting prints include Adrian; Air Conditioning Company; Allied Engineers; Ambassador Hotel; American Home ; Architectural Forum; Architectural Record; Arrowhead Springs Hotel; Barker Bros.; Better Homes and Gardens/Meredith Publishing Company; Beverly Hills Hotel; Fannie Brice; Bob Brown; Bullock's; John Byers; Cannell & Chaffin; Georgius Y. Cannon; Charles of the Ritz; Cheesewright and Mason; Thomas Dolliver Church; James E. Dolena; Dorothy Draper; Eichler Homes; French-Stamats; Alfred T. Gilman; Good Housekeeping ; Pauline Graves; Harwell Hamilton Harris; Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel; House and Garden; House Beautiful; Myron Hunt; I. Magnin department store; J. Walter Thompson Agency; Kaiser Community Homes; Paul László; Los Angeles Times; Mackie and Kamrath; Barbara Barondess MacLean; Cliff May; Museum of Modern Art; NBC; Wallace Neff; Neiman Marcus; O.M. Scott & Sons; Park La Brea residential community; Popular Home ; Terence Harold Robsjohn-Gibbings; Harriet Schellenberger; Rudolph Schindler; Southern California Gas Company; Robert Stanton; Sunset; Eugene Swarzwald; Walter Dorwin Teague; Jessica Treat; University of Arizona; Vermont Marble; W. & J. Sloane; Richard Whiteman Advertising; Paul R. Williams; and Young and Rubicam. Generally, the invoices were filed by Parker in the order in which they were paid, and are thus not strictly chronological. Some months and years are missing. Some folders also include non-business items (cards, notes, bills to Parker for non-photographic items).

The ledgers and sales books (1938-1973) consist of ledgers with entries arranged by month and generally listing invoice numbers, client names, and billed amounts; information on petty cash for 1941 and 1968 (including receipts and other printed ephemera); an invoice log for 1971-1973 that contains invoice numbers and client names (and includes some invoices); bad debt ledgers; and income logs that detail receipts and deposits for both personal and business accounts. Some years are missing.

Also included is Parker's address and note card file.
